Scientific Station for Brewing of Chicago.

THE OBJECT OF THE SCIENTIFIC STATION:

To aid the brewer in detecting and to rid himself of disturbing influences leading to the production of faulty beer.

To aid the brewer in manufacturing beer as economically as possible, without affecting quality of article produced in any way detrimentally.

To aid in the progress of the art of brewing by scientific and practical researches.

THESE OBJECTS ARE ATTAINED:

1. By analysis and examination of the raw materials and other articles used in the manufacture of beer and of the intermediate products.
2. By determining the yield obtainable from the malt, cereals, hops, etc., employed.
3. By examining and correcting instruments employed in breweries, such as thermometers and saccharometers.
4. By examining and giving our opinion on new apparatus, methods and inventions introduced into the trade.
5. By making experiments and observations in the brewery.
6. By communicating to our members the results of scientific and practical researches undertaken by the station.

THE ADVANTAGES THAT BREWERS HAVE DERIVED WHO HAVE ENGAGED OUR SERVICES ARE:

1. A saving of raw material by our advising methods of extracting the material as completely as possible, without affecting the quality of the beer in any way detrimentally.
2. Lessening the loss of beer through its becoming unfit for market, by drawing attention in due time to dangers to which beer is exposed.
3. By saving beer that has become unfit for market.
4. By guarding brewers against loss resulting from the delivery of spurious goods by dealers, or goods that do not come up to sample. This is done by comparing the quality of the goods delivered with the quality of sample bought from and determining difference in value.
5. By consulting from time to time with the brewer or manager and investigating personally any difficulties that may have arisen.
6. By giving our experience as to the utility of new apparatus that brewers may wish to introduce into their establishments.

...Membership...

Only such Brewers and Maltsters can obtain full benefit from our work who have become members of our Station; that is to say, only those who remain constantly in touch with the Station by having the materials employed by them and intermediate products examined by us regularly. Members pay per annum according to their output, for which amount all analyses and examinations required are made and our advice given whenever required.

Visits to the breweries at the special request of a member are charged according to expenses and time.

WORKS AUTOMATICALLY.

No Spring or Weights to adjust Brushes. Brushes adjust themselves according to size of Keg and can be changed from Eight to Whole Barrel in about one minute. Brushes will last much longer than on the old style machines on account of the brushes being on arms that lower or raise themselves to fit the Keg.

No Squeezing or Bending of Brushes, as arms lift to admit the Keg.
